

To the Intellectual Elite

by Ally Cole

Sometimes I'm too fat for you.
I'm the one in the corner hiding the wrappers of little debbies shoved into my mouth
one after another
while you recline at the mahogany table, flaunting your lean salmon, steamed carrots and broccoli, wielding a silver fork.